Additional Layers:

Layers of coverages will vary, as they are dependent on how involved the GIS program is to the area. The need for (and types) of layers will increase with the size and urbanization of the area. The more advanced programs with detailed layers will be more expensive since the start-up costs for them will be higher. Therefore, there is no fair way to establish a uniform set of prices for layers across the state. Each PVA office using GIS will have to determine their own layering schedules based on the amount of money invested into their program.
